The Insane Hospital, at Augusta.

We last week had the satisfaction of visiting the Insane Hospital at Augusta. It is a splendid granite building in exact imitation in form, and arrangement, with that at Worcester, Massachusetts, and calculated to accommodate one hundred patients. It is situated on the eastern bank of the river about equi-distant from the river and the road, and commands a splendid view of the villages of Hallowell and Augusta, of the river, State-house, bridge, arsenal, and the great roads on both sides of the river; the western view terminating with the high hills back of the village of Augusta. The lot upon which it is located, contains about seventy-acres, affording a fine opportunity for culture and for natural embellishments. The view from the river to the buildings is about seventy feet, and from the buildings to the road perhaps fifty feet; it is well watered and being rapidly improved.

The design of this institution, which has been established, by private donations, and the contributions of the State is, to benefit the poor, as well as those who are able to support themselves; and to save from the hardships of chains, dungeons, nakedness and cold, those unfortunate beings, who have lost the directing power of reason. The light of science has revealed to men a wiser philosophy, with regard to the insane, than that the Almighty had selected them as the special objects to bear the mark of his displeasure; and the progress of christian principles, resulted in an enlargement of philanthropic effort to give to this unfortunate class the benefits of kindness and sympathy, and to exercise of all the powers which remain unimpaired.

Such institutions are the best monuments we have of the progress of society to a better state, for if the insane, who were formerly shut up in strong rooms, with straight waistcoats, and bound in chains shut out from all intercourse and sympathy with the world, and fed, perhaps, from the hand of a wife or child through an aperture of a bolted and barred door, with a dim murky light in the room, and a bundle of straw, in the corner, amidst the filth of close confinement we say, if these are provided, for and raised to places of comfort and intercourse, allowed pure air, and bracing exercise, and to receive those attentions, which their health, happiness and recovery may demand, then we safely conclude that all other classes in community, who need kindly aid, will not be neglected.

In witnessing the freedom and comfort of the patients, and the happy accommodations provided for them, we were strongly impressed with the idea of what a world of hope was opened to them and to their friends.

Every thing about the establishment is surpassingly neat, and the strictest attention appears to be paid to every department. We deem it fortunate for all concerned that the Superintendent is a man thoroughly qualified for the high trust reposed in him, and that he brings to the discharge of duties, an ardent love of his profession, and untiring industry in its pursuit.

The patients that we saw all appeared comfortable, and many of them happy. It cannot be but that all the powers they possess unimpaired must be gratified at the opportunities afforded for their exercise, either in labor or amusement. We noticed several fine specimens of female needle work and ingenuity, performed at the Hospital, and saw several of the males much interested in the performance of useful labor.

It is certainly not among the least pleasant considerations to know, that by the annual reports of Insane Hospitals, and by remarks made while visiting them, that the people generally are becoming better informed as to the character and causes of insanity, and will thus be better prepared to guard against the latter, and to adopt the best means for the cure of the afflicted. It is surprising that so many cases of hopeless insanity should be occasioned by masturbation, and yet so little real effort be made by parents to prevent it.

The want of a public library for the Hospital is seriously felt, and we trust that some good friend to the unfortunate will yet be found in our State disposed to supply this want, or that an effort may be made to collect one from the contributions of all who are interested.

The attic of the main building is yet unfinished, but which it is designed to have finished for a chapel, as it is found that with most patients religious services have a soothing and beneficial effect.

Our visit at the Hospital was necessarily brief, but highly satisfactory, and so we think it, but to all who visit it. Our thanks are due to Dr. Ray, the superintendent, for his courtesy and attention.

If there is no use in trying to talk down the benefits of genuine Bitters. The wisdom of the world has decided in their favor, and who does not wish to have the bitter and the sweet so combined as to produce the usefulness of the one, and the delightfulness of the other? Then eschew alcohol in all its forms, and chew Penck's Candy in any form. It causes the glands of the throat to dilate with ecstasy, and carries the essence of health to the lungs and stomach.

Dr. Penck's affliction, have prevented the editor from giving the usual attention to the contents of this number.

"Who reads an American Book?" Letters from Rome mention that an Italian translation of Sparks' Life of Washington, with a selection from Washington's Writings, is about to be published in Italy. This edition will follow the plan of Guizot's French version of the same work (continued in six volumes) and Von Raumer's German version.

If it will be seen by the following that the families of our late neighbor, Robert Harvey, Esq., and his sons of Glenburn, attract considerable attention upon the road to their new home in the west.

Going West.

Among the various detachments that daily pass through this place West, there are often oddities enough observed in the space of three days to fill a folio, and the last one which went out in the Fulton this morning. The detachment consisted of a couple of families from Penobscot, Maine, moving to Rock Island City, on the Mississippi.

The party were mostly young females, whose conversation and deportment indicated that they had been-reared and educated to adroit society. The father was evidently a man of means, but an eccentric, and the principal vehicle, in which the whole were conveyed from their down east homestead to this place, was a unique and out of its construction and appearance as the character of the gentleman who controlled it, being nothing more or less than a ponderous four wheeled machine; some eight yards long and three broad, and weighing over two tons.

In this car we found cooking utensils, bedding and other domestic appliances requisite for the accommodation of the party, while a second, and less sized vehicle, contained the wardrobe, instruments of death, and other "documents" necessary to gain a permanent footing in their new sought homes; the whole forming, while en route, a procession that would do honor to the coronation of the King of the Mammoth. Buffalo Com. Adc.

Coffee.

As Napoleon was a great man, perhaps, he knew how to make good coffee. At any rate, it is safer to follow his example in preparing this beverage, than some other things; so we give his mode that any one disposed may adopt it.

The late Emperor Napoleon, who was a great amateur of coffee, of which, however, he made a moderate use, is said to have given instructions to his cook to prepare it in the following way: For three or four persons, two ounces of recently burnt and ground coffee are put into an empty coffee pot of the ordinary kind, with a small piece of singless; this is held over the fire and shaken by the hand so as to prevent the burning of the coffee; when a smoke is seen to issue from the pot, water, at the boiling point, is poured upon it in a sufficient quantity to supply six breakfast cups, in the proportion of one-third of coffee to two-thirds of milk; the coffee pot is taken from the fire before the water is added, but being heated, the coffee boils gently as the pot is held in the hand; the ebullition is sufficient to bring out all the fine properties of the coffee without carrying off the aroma; a cup is then poured out and returned again to the pot, to allow the powder to precipitate, and in two or three minutes the coffee is perfectly clear, and is used with boiling milk. Some of the best families in Paris now adopt this plan, which is certainly superior to that now in use.

Theory of the Wind.

Wind has been explained in the following manner:

Heated air has a tendency to rise, and cold air rushes in to supply its place. Thus the heated air of the equatorial regions rises and gives place to a current sent from the polar regions, which is a process that serves to equalize the temperature of the world. But the polar countries lying near to the axis of the sphere, the air from those regions has not received so much motion as that about the equator, or greatest distance from the axis; wherefore, it arrives at the equator, where the motion of the earth is greater. If it had no motion before, an east wind would be the consequence, and the force of that wind would be as the difference between the motion of the earth where the air came from, and that where it arrived; but then it has a motion to the south; for it is rushing into a vacuum left by the air which rises, so that the wind will not be from the east, but north-east; and the number of degrees north of the east from which it will blow will depend upon the comparative force of the current of air from the north to the difference between the earth's motion at the equator and at the polar region, from whence the air comes. As there must be a corresponding efflux from the equator higher up, according to this theory, the wind should every where be north-east or south-west, but it blows in very different directions at different times and places; and this probably depends on the variations in temperature at different times, and places. Foster's "Researches about Atmospheric Phenomena."

Lord Wellington and the "Bee-Hive Order."

Extract from a general order issued by Lord Wellington, dated at Jariacejo, 16th of August, 1798.

"The soldiers are again positively prohibited to plunder bee hives. Any man found with a bee hive in his possession will be punished."

This order did not deter the late fourteenth "honey-suckers," as will be seen by two subsequent orders dated at Badajos, Sept. 7 and 12th of the same year. "Soon after the first order on bee hives was issued at Jariacejo, Lord Wellington, in one of his rides, saw a man of the 83d, or Connaught Rangers posting along as fast as his legs could carry him, with a bee hive on his head. Lord W. furious at so flagrant a disobedience of orders, which sapped all discipline, called out to him, 'Hillo! sir, where did you get that bee hive? Pat had enveloped his head and face in his great coat to prevent the bees stinging him, and thinking more of his prize than the tone of voice addressed to him, answered in pure Milesian, 'Just over the hill there; and by Jassa, if you don't make haste they'll be all gone.' The blind good nature of Pat, stayed the Duke's anger, and it was reported at dinner as a joke. It was no joke afterwards, however, to the 4th division, (of infantry) as will be seen in the orders of the month following, when they got the name of the "Honey-suckers." But they soon won for themselves another name in the field, and gained something sweeter than honey in a reputation which has buried the sobriquet in oblivion. The Connaught Rangers made part of the 4th division, which was, I believe, commanded by the brave PICTON. N. P.

The "Norfolk Beacon" has a brief article impugning the veracity of Mr. Ewing, upon the authority of Mr. Mallory, of Virginia. "We have been called upon," it says, "to record a declaration made by the Hon. Francis Mallory, in an address delivered by him at Nansemond Court House, to the citizens there assembled, on Monday last: that President Tyler had authorized him to pronounce the statement of Mr. Ewing (respecting the concoction of the second Fiscal Bill) to be false in every essential particular. Dr. M. further remarked, that a full contradiction of that statement would appear at the proper time." When asked at what time it would appear? he replied that he did not himself know; but that it would appear.

A. Kibe Country for Loafers.

According to Mr. Humboldt, there is a tree in the South Sea Islands which produces ready-made shirts. The natives cut off pieces of the tree about two feet long, from which they draw off the red and fibrous bark in the same manner that boys draw off the bark of chestnut to make whistles. Each man selects a tree near his own diameter, so that the shirt may be a good fit. When the bark is off, they cut a hole in each side to admit the arms. These shirts do not require any washing, starching or ironing, and a more convenient article for loafers could not be imagined. The same country produces bread fruit, so that a fellow may get his board and clothes gratis; and (what will meet the views of some Philadelphia gentlemen of leisure,) he may sleep out all night without any interruption from the watchmen. Who will put in to establish a grand Loafers' Colonization Society, to facilitate the transportation of those gentlemen to the South Sea Islands? The idea of shirts and luncheons gratis will be a powerful inducement for them to emigrate. Philadelphia Led.

We cannot trace the flying report that Mr. Webster is about to resign his seat in the Cabinet to any reliable source, and are glad we cannot. Having from the first desired that he should remain at his post as long as he could do so consistently with his principles and his honor, having all along considered him the proper judge of the requirements of that honor, and regretted only his presuming to judge for others, we should feel deep regret at his withdrawal from the Cabinet at this time. We should consider such a step portentous of new mischiefs and of a farther estrangement of the President from the party which elected him of the ascendancy of a blighting Calhounism in the Executive councils. But no such calamity, we confidently trust, is impending; and we have great hope that the next Session of Congress will be met by the proposition of some system of Finance in which the Whigs can heartily acquiesce. Thus shall harmony be restored to our councils, strength to the Whig ascendancy, and prosperity to the Country. N. Y. Tribune.

SNOW.

BY MRS. SIGOURNEY.

How quietly the snow comes down.
When all are fast asleep,
And plays a thousand fairy pranks
O'er vale and mountain steep.
How cunningly it finds its way
To every cranny small,
And creeps through even the slightest chink
In window or in wall.

To every nookless hill it brings
A fairer purer crest
Than the rich ermine robe that decks
The haughtiest monarch's breast.
To every reaching spray it gives
White'er its hand can hold
A beautiful young the snow is,
To all both young and old.

The waking day, through curling haze,
Looks forth, with sore surprise,
To view what changes have been wrought.
Since last she shut her eyes;
And a pleasant thing it is to see
The cottage children peep
From out the drift, that to their eaves
Prolongs its rampart deep.

The patient farmer searches
His buried lambs to find,
And dig his silly poultry out,
Who clamor in the wind;
How stupidly he cuts his way,
Though wild blasts beat him back,
And cowers for his waiting herd
Who shiver round the stack.

Right welcome are those feathery flakes
To the ruddy robin's eye,
As down the long, smooth hill they coast,
With shout and revelry,
Or, when the moonlight, clear and cold,
Calls out their throng to play
Oh! a merry gift the snow is
For a Christmas holiday.

The city miss, who, wrapp'd in fur,
Is lifted to the sleigh,
And borne so daintily to school
Along the crowded way,
Feels not within her pallid cheek
The rich blood mantling warm,
Like her who, laughing, shakes the snow
From powdered tress and form.

A tasteful hand the Snow hath
For on the storied pane
I saw its Alpine landscapes traced
With arch and sculptured line,
Where high, o'er hoary-headed cliffs
The dizzy Simphon wound,
And old cathedrals reared their towers
With Gothic tracery bound.

I think it hath a tender heart,
For I marked it while it crept
To spread a sheltering mantle where
The infant blossom slept,
It doth to Earth a deed of love
Though in a wintry way;
And her turf-grown will be greener
For the snow that's fallen to-day.

A Mother's Thoughts amidst her Children.

BY MRS. CHARLES TINSLEY.

Whom we have reared, watched, blessed, too much adored!

"Ye are around me still,
A bright unbroken band; your voices fill
The summer air with gladness, yet I know
That Fate's cold shadows are around me falling.
That with its thousand tongues the world is calling,
Urging you forth and we must go!"

"Ye will depart with grief
From the fair bowers where ye have wandered free,
As spring's rejoicing birds; ye will not cast
Sad looks and linger on your childhood's dwelling,
Whilst Hope of other, brighter realms, is telling:
Ye will not sorrow for the past!"

"Ye will go boldly forth,
With your heart's treasures, gems of priceless worth,
To battle for the hollowness, the strife
Of human crowds—ah, fond ones! little knowing
How ill your cherished dream, so rich, so glowing,
Still the realities of life!"

"Ye will not learn to prize
The holy quiet of the love that lies
Deep in your hearts, till ye have lost the wrong
That the cold, scornful world is ever wreaking
On the gentlest spirits, on the weary seeking
Safe shelter in its throng!"

Therefore I sadly gaze
Upon you, with the thought of future days
Brooding around me; and I vainly deem
That no relentless change your paths might sever,
That this united we might glide forever
Along life's onward stream!"

And solemn thoughts arise,
As now I low into your loving eyes

And school mine heart for evil hours to come,
How may I think upon the opening morn;
With its impending ill its strife and sorrow,
And trial and its doom!

How will thy spirit break
My proud, fair girl, beneath the yoke to look
That hides life's hollow joys, and mocking trust?
How wilt thou bear, from glorious visions stooping,
To own with low, sad voice, and dim eyes drooping,
Thy portion with the dust?

And thou, my loving child,
My gentle boy, with thy affections wild,
And spirit shrinking still from boisterous glee,
How, in a world, with angry passions teeming,
With Envy's poisoned words, and Pride's dark scheming,
How wilt thou fare with these?

Wilt thou find food for mirth,
My joyous one, amid the graves of earth?
Wilt thou hearken's sunshine to the desert bring,
A brightness not its own? or wilt thou, failing
In love and hope, change thy glad songs to wailing,
Or silence—bird of spring?

"Ye are around me still,
A bright, unbroken band; your voices fill
The summer air with gladness, yet I know
That Fate's cold shadows are around us falling,
That with its thousand tongues the world is calling,
Urging you forth and we must go!"

Yet—whether ye are yet
Heirs of a higher promise; unforgotten
Of him that mindeth even the sparrow's fall?
Be still, my heart! the future hath its story
Of vanquished evil and enduring glory,
—And triumph, for you will!"

Rate and Important from Texas—Custom House Robbed.

The New Orleans Picayune of Oct. 16th, contains the following summary of the latest news from Texas:

Sam Houston is elected President of the Republic by a majority exceeding 5,000.

Burleson as vice President, is elected by a majority of over 2,000.

Nothing of the Santa Fe Expedition.
The war vessels Austin and Wharton were preparing to sail for Yucatan, and were merely awaiting the arrival of Commodore Moore from Matagorda; with the war schooner San Antonio and San Bernard.

A conclusive treaty, offensive and defensive has been agreed upon by the governments of Texas and Yucatan.

The cotton crop is large, and is coming in rapidly.
A daring robbery was committed on the custom-house at Galveston on the night of the 24th ult. Specie to the amount of $3,000 was taken from it. Much excitement having existed in the city, and the suspicions of every person resting on a particular individual, diligent search was made on his premises, his wife, being unable to keep so important a secret, informed the collector where her husband had concealed the cash, and it was at once recovered. The name of the robber is Everett. He is now in prison, and the case was being investigated when the sloop Washington left.

Another Great Defalcation in New York;—Embezzlement by the Pension Agent.

The Journal of Commerce says: We are informed, from the proper source, that Mr. Sylvester Spencer, who for many years past had charge of the Pension office attached to the Mechanics' Bank in this city, turns out to be a defaulter to the amount of about Eleven Thousand Dollars.

Being entrusted by the Bank to draw checks for the payment of pensioners, he has, it seems, recently drawn such checks at different times within the last six months, to the above amount, in the names of persons not entitled to pensions, and procured the money and appropriated it to his own use.

A careful examination of the pension office and vouchers, shows the precise amount of defalcation to be $10,972 41, which will be nearly covered by the securities held by the Bank.

Pensacola Oct. 9.

The ship Pallas, just arrived, is the first Prussian vessel that has visited our harbor. She is a beautiful vessel. Her object is to take in a cargo of spars to be used by the French Navy. Col. Fitzpatrick the agent of the French government for procuring these spars, spent some time in this neighborhood making arrangements for their procurement. He left here last week for Middle Florida.

The funeral of Hon. John Forsyth took place at Washington on Saturday, and was attended by all the Foreign Ministers, Heads of Departments, &c. in Washington.

HUMAN HAIR.
CLEANLINESS OF THE HEAD AND HAIR.

STRANGE it is that persons who attend strictly to personal cleanliness, bath, &c. should neglect the Head—the Hair—the most essential, the most exposed, and the most beautiful when properly cared for, of all the gifts of the Creator. Perfectly free may it be kept of dandruff or scurf with a certainty that the hair cannot fall out, by the use of the Balm of Columbia. Ladies, will you make your toilet without this article? I answer fearlessly, No, if you have once tried and experienced its purifying effects its sweet perfume.

A hundred articles have been put forth on the credit of this, the only first, the only really valuable article. A mass of testimony from all places in these facts.

LOOK OUT. Counterfeits are abroad; look always for the name of COMSTOCK & Co. on the splendid wrapper, and never buy it without that name.

[From the Boston Chronicle, Jan. 10.]

We see by an advertisement in another column that Messrs. Comstock & Co., the Agents for Oldridge's Balm of Columbia, have deputies to sell that article in Boston and elsewhere. We know a lady of this city whose hair was so nearly gone as to expose entirely her phrenological developments, which, considering that they betokened a most amiable disposition, was not in reality very unfortunate. Nevertheless she mourned the loss of locks that she had worn, and, after a year's fruitless resort to musical restoratives, purchased, some months ago, a bottle or two of Oldridge's Balm, and she has now ringlets as rich profusion, glossy, and of raven blackness. We are not putting none of the commodity has been sent to us, indeed, we do not want any, for though we have now, through its virtue, hair enough, and of a possible quality, of our own.

Daring Frauds.
The Balm of Columbia has been imitated by a notorious counterfeiter. Let it never be purchased or used unless it have the signature of COMSTOCK & Co. on a splendid wrapper. This is the only external test that will secure the public from deception.
